Hello, Columbia Beer Lovers!

Welcome to the inaugural World Beer Festival—Columbia. I've been running beer festivals for nearly 30 years, including putting on a few great ones in North Carolina and I know when I see the makings of a good beer town. We're so excited to be working in a town so brimming with beer consciousness as Columbia is.

Columbia has the fundamentals of a spectacular beer community. On my first visit here, I felt the vibe. A great beer store like Green's Discount Beverage; a couple of great beer bars like Flying Saucer, Mellow Mushroom and Carolina Ale House, and a nifty brewpub in the Hunter Gatherer: all the pieces for a serious beer culture are here.

However, what really has got our team on the edge of their chairs is the vibe from the people of Columbia. Everywhere each of us has gone in the town, we meet people who are excited about our message of beer appreciation and enjoyment. People love great beer in Columbia and are looking for a focal point to come together.

Our mission at All About Beer Magazine is to educate the public about beer appreciation and beer quality, and foster the development of a positive beer community. In Columbia, we have found a wonderful place for our mission. Here is an extensive beer community just waiting for the educational critical mass in order to take off.

When I set out on this path 30 years ago, all I wanted to do was share the joy I found in the flavor of a wonderful beer. At bars or restaurants, around the dinner table and at friends' houses, people were thirsty to learn about beers, beer styles and beer cultures. From guided beer tastings to beer and food pairings, I attempted to infuse people with the passion I have for beer aesthetics.

It was the beer festivals that really transformed people's enjoyment. Being able to wander tents or halls sampling from a wide variety of beautiful beers turned people on to the depth of beer culture. Gathering together at a festival became an exciting way to experience beer. After running several dozen of these gatherings, we've figured out how to create the best, safest, educational experience – the World Beer Festival.

So, welcome, Columbia, to the World Beer Festival experience. We hope you enjoy it and we hope to be here for a long time.

Cheers,

Daniel Bradford, Festival Producer

P.S. DO NOT drive drunk! Know your limit—this is a tasting event and it is not possible to try every beer. The festival reserves the right to deny service to anyone who appears intoxicated and to eject persons exhibiting unruly or obnoxious behavior.

GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR FESTIVAL

Welcome to the first World Beer Festival-Columbia. With hundreds of beers here for you to sample, it is impossible to try them all. Here are some strategies to make the most of your experience.

Make a plan

Pick a theme to organize your tasting choice:

- Taste beers from one nation or region, e.g. Belgium, or the American South.
 - Select one style and compare examples from different breweries, e.g. India pale ales.
 - Taste a range of bitter beers: pale ales, India pale ales and German pilsners.
 - Taste a range of sweeter, malty beers: Scottish ales, German and Czech dark beers, porters and stouts.

How to taste beer

- First, look at the beer, and notice its color and head.
 - Next, smell the beer's aromas.
 - Taste the beer, and see how the flavor develops.
 - Talk over your impression with friends, or make notes.

Come to a “tutored tasting”

- Hear from an expert at the All About Beer Magazine booth every hour.

Smart habits

- In any sequence of beers, start with lighter flavors and move to heavier ones.
- Rinse your glass between samples.
- Feel free to experiment and pour out beers you don't like.
- Take a break every few samples to drink water, eat or relax.
- Know your limits, and stay safe.

AN INTRODUCTION TO BEER STYLES

The excitement surrounding beer these days is the discovery of lesser-known styles outside the mainstream.

Here is just a handful:

Lager beers, the family of beers from the German and central European tradition, are clean and crisp:

- Pilsner. Aromatic, full of pleasantly bitter hop character, soft and quenching.
 - Dunkel. Ruby brown in color; full of toffeeish, bready and caramelized notes; low on hop bitterness.
 - Bock. Bocks, maibocks and doppelbocks are malty, sweet and strong, but also clean and refreshing.
 - Schwarzbier. The darkest of the lager styles. Lightly roasty bitter chocolate flavor, balanced by drying bitterness.

Ale beers from Britain and Belgium, are fruitier than lagers, with more unusual secondary flavors:

- Pale ale. Golden amber to copper; bready, lightly caramel flavors balanced with aromatic bitterness.
- India pale ale. Similar to pale ale, but bigger in every respect, with a vigorous bitter finish.
- Scottish ales. Low in hop bitterness, the emphasis is on rich, substantial malted barley flavor, with a clean finish.
- Porter. Deep brown; toasty and chocolatey flavor. Hop bitterness varies.
- Stout. Deep, roasted flavor, a touch of burnt toast, chocolate and espresso.
- Belgian monastic-style ales dubble and triples. Strong in alcohol, fruity and spicy. Dubbels tend to be dark and rich; triples are higher in alcohol, but lighter in body.

Wheat ales use wheat in addition to barley as their grain base, which gives them a fresh, spritzy character.

- Belgian wit beer. Pale, almost milky, with aromas of spices, such as coriander and curaçao (bitter) orange peel. Silky and refreshing.
- Hefeweizen. Cloudy, with a handsome head, a German-style hefeweizen has notes of banana, clove and bubblegum.

BEER FLIGHTS

brought to you by Bambino's Pizzeria & Wine Bar

Four hours and over 400 beers. Choices overwhelming? Stop by the All About Beer Magazine presentation room or Bambino's booth #58 for a list of beer flights — beer circuits of the festival organized by theme.

The Hop Head's Delight

If you love the flavor of hops, here are some of the festival's bitterest brews.

Belgian and Belgian-style Beers

When it comes to beer, Belgium has the greatest range of styles and flavors. Taste Belgian originals and North American interpretations.

Regional Treats

Sample some great beers made by breweries in the region. Here are a dozen different beer styles presented by a dozen different breweries.

Not Afraid of the Dark

A selection of dark beer styles. From soft maltiness to burnt toast, dark beers are packed with flavor.

Culture Clash

Taste some original European styles and bold American interpretations.

You Put What in My Beer?

There's more to beer than barley, hops, yeast, and water.
